CHRISTIAN WORKERS' CONVENTION
Preparatory Meeting to-night at Presbyterian Church.

The third of a series of meetings preparatory to the Christian Workers' convention will be held this evening at the Presbyterian church on Elm street, near Orange, at 7:45 o'clock. This meeting will be conducted by Mr. Corwin, and the subject will be in the form of a question, "Are You Ready?" These services have been very interesting so far, and the one to-night promises to be still more so. The Christian Endeavor union, under whose auspices the meetings are being held, are anxious that a large representation of the young people be present, and very cordially invite all who are interested in Christian work to attend.

Councilman Peck Much Better.

The report that Councilman Peck of the firm of Homer H. Peck & Son, the Wooster street grocers, had had a relapse is an error, the report we are glad to say being unfounded. The facts are as we learn from Mr. H. H. Peck that Councilman Peck is improving. He has been a very sick man and his recovery is, therefore, naturally slow, but all the indications are now favorable to his recovery as the public will be glad to learn. His illness was bronchial pneumonia.

Death of Miss Katie Beegan.

The many friends of Signal Officer Biecy Beegan of the police department and of his estimable wife and family will deeply sympathize with them over the death of Mr. and Mrs. Beegan's daughter, Miss Katie Beegan, who passed away about midnight Monday night, after a lingering illness. Miss Beegan was a very interesting and amiable young lady about seventeen years of age. She has been afflicted with lung trouble for some time and last summer spent a number of weeks in Litchfield in hopes of benefiting her health. Every effort in her behalf by skilled physicians and various journeys for the improvement of her health proved unavailing. She had been an attendant at the State Normal school, but ceased her studies on account of poor health. The funeral will probably be held on Thursday.

Laid at Rest.

Funeral Services of Mrs. Elizabeth Stoffel. The funeral services of Mrs. Elizabeth Stoffel, mother of Mrs. Frederick D. Grave, took place yesterday afternoon from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Grave, No. 523 George street. The house was filled to overflowing with sorrowing and sympathizing friends who had assembled to pay the last and tribute of esteem for the sleeper. Rev. Mr. Siebke was the officiating clergyman and made beautiful remarks concerning the deceased lady, who was for many years one of his parishioners, and in his remarks he also spoke most feelingly of her love and reverence for the sanctuary and her devotedness to the interests of the church. There was beautiful singing both at the house and the grave by a quartet composed of the Hahn brothers, Professor Schwarck and Joseph Lange. The floral tributes were splendid and very numerous, including many exquisite designs. The pallbearers were Messrs. L. C. Pratt, John Ruff, Jacob Marx and Charles Hildebrand. These gentlemen, who are all well known and influential citizens, are the four oldest members of the German Benevolent society. Messrs. Stahl and Hegel were the funeral directors. The interment was in Evergreen cemetery.

FAIR HAVEN.

Captain Caleb L. Ludington who has been very ill, has been able to walk out once or twice.

Dr. Roberts secured much needed recuperation during his vacation trip and is now in good health. Dr. Robinson looked after his practice during his absence and it made him very busy.

Selectman Ludington speaks very highly of his southern tour, especially of his visit to Asheville.

Miss Addie Strong is at Bantam Lake attending the wedding of her friend, Miss Etta Hadley, formerly of Fair Haven.

George Brockett, who suffered a shock recently, is very feeble.

The house owned by the Quinnipiac Brewing company, near the corner of East Chapel and Houston streets, has been moved to the opposite side of Chapel near East Pearl street, to afford room for a new building soon to be erected. The building was moved across the tracks of the Fair Haven & Westville road on Sunday and cars on the Chapel street line were suspended during the day.

Frederick Dodd of Springfield, who has been very ill at the home of his brother-in-law W. H. Huntley of Pierpont street, has improved sufficiently to be able to return home.

J. H. Thorpe, the joiner contractor for the new hall of Polar Star lodge, I. O. O. F., began laying the foundation timbers yesterday.

The young people of St. Francis' church will give a dance in Central hall this evening.

New England Order of Protection (Fort Hale lodge) will meet Friday evening. Three candidates are to be initiated.

Dr. Robinson reports an epidemic of colds in this vicinity. Some of these ailments are accompanied by symptoms much like the grip.

L. P. Deming of the annex, vice-warden of the Grand Lodge, N. E. O. P., goes to Essex this evening to speak in behalf of the order.

The democrats in the annex are much interested in the candidacy of Roosevelt B. Farren for town agent and claim that no candidate would make a better showing at the polls.

The board of warden and burgess will meet Monday evening. Probably the matter of paying rental for the hydrant service will come up for consideration. The board is opposed to paying for this service when in other parts of the town the service is furnished by the town.

Warden Stier, who has been in the west for the past month, will preside at the meeting if he returns in time.

A harvest concert by the Sunday school will be given in the Grand avenue Baptist church next Sunday evening. One week later there will be a praise service by the choir.

E. S. Wade is improving his house on Rose street annex. The space under the veranda is to be taken into the basement story and other improvements made. Joel Bradley is doing the work.

Jacob Friedel, the east side liverman, had a tumor removed on Friday and is improving rapidly.

Rev. J. E. Mitchell and wife who have been down to their plantation in Virginia several days, will return the latter part of the week.

In the Grand avenue Congregational church the collection taken on Sunday for the A. B. C. F. M. amounted to about $30.

The flag was erected on the tower of the Strong school house, Tuesday. The top of the pole 150 feet above the ground. A handsome vane has been placed on the pole, but the letters are too small for so great a height. The work of placing the pole was witnessed by a large number of people.

The funeral of Miss Bertha P. Johnson was conducted from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel S. Johnson, 64 Clinton avenue, Monday afternoon. Rev. N. G. Cheney of the East Pearl street church officiating. The arrangements were under the direction of Undertaker H. W. Crawford. The house was crowded with the friends of the deceased. A great many floral tributes rested upon and around the casket.

L. J. Mundell of the New Haven Steam Heating company has had charge of placing the hot water heating apparatus in the Morris house at Morris Cove.

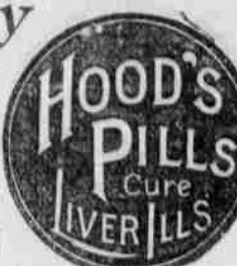

NEW WATER MAIN COMPLETED.
The New Haven Water company yesterday completed laying the new eight-inch water main through Ferry street to Grand avenue, connecting with the twenty-four-inch main which runs from Lake Saltonstall through Grand avenue, supplying that section of the city. Water was shut off yesterday.

SAN GERONIMO'S FESTIVAL.

Mrs. McClurg Tells of This Great Day Among the Pueblos—Interesting Facts About Ancient People—The Hides of San Geronimo's Day—Next and Last Lecture of the Series to be Illustrated by a Stereopticon—The Hour Changed.
Mrs. Gilbert McClurg yesterday afternoon delivered the third in her course of lectures on "The Prehistoric Southwest" at United church chapel. The special topic yesterday was San Geronimo and the festivals held in his honor among the Pueblo Indians at present. Mrs. McClurg first described the pottery of the Pueblos and explained the mythology of the race.

The most interesting part of the lecture was that portion which described the celebrations attending San Geronimo's festival day. This occurs on the 30th of September of each year and is the chief gala day of the year among the Pueblos, the Santa Domingo harvest dance being a great part of the gaiety. On this occasion the dancing continues for about eight hours to the music of barbarous instruments. The origin of the rites of the harvest dance dates back to the remotest antiquity of these people, all except that part devoted to the honor of San Geronimo. For centuries the Pueblos have held these festivals, the like of which were unknown among the other Indians of what is now the United States.

The women of the Pueblos prepare for the festival with as much attention as a New England housewife bestows upon her Thanksgiving preparations. The curious blue corn bread is baked in fantastic shapes and this with other offerings is taken to the little church, where the padre says a mass for the souls of departed friends. After the ceremonies are over the offerings go to the padre's storeroom, so that this relic of an old world festival is turned into a modern donation party. These padre were at work among the people of the Pueblos as early as 1543. They did not seek to blot out all the faith of the people, but some of their gods and ideas were slightly changed and made to coincide with the Catholic conception of religion.

Each Pueblo has a population of about four hundred and is five or six stories high, each story being smaller than the one underneath. The terrace plan of building prevailed in the older Pueblos, but those of the present time are built in the flat, low Mexican style. In the old Pueblos the lower and outer wall made an impregnable fortress.

Taos, where the festival to San Geronimo is held, has its walls terraced on all four sides, so that it resembles a pyramid. There are really two of these buildings about 250 feet apart, both under the shelter of Taos mountain. Two or three rooms are allotted to each family. More than 10,000 visitors come to Taos each year to the celebration, and all sorts of people may be seen there at that time, even Apache Indians attending during recent years. The natives are gauntly decorated in feathers, paint, and colored leaves. After the religious ceremonies are over a series of races and athletic sports are held.

Mrs. McClurg exhibited some interesting relics, illustrating life among the Pueblos, among them being a deer hide on which was painted a picture of St. John. In the edges of the hide are nail marks where it was nailed to the wall of some mission church, and it is a relic of early Spanish times in the southwest. Dolls such as are made by the Pueblos and Apaches, amulets, a sort of canteen, rude head dresses and other relics were shown.

The next and last lecture of the series will be held to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock, the time having been changed from 8 p. m., as at first scheduled. It will be illustrated by stereopticon views and promises to be the most interesting of an extremely interesting course.
